visit was six. Complaints by several citizens of violation of the local-option law have taken up more of our time than we were willing to give, and the parties disturbed failed to find competent witnesses to establish a case against any individual. We are satisfied that liquors are easily obtainable at two widely separate points in the county, and we would recommend that the proper officers make systematic efforts to obtain positive evidence against the offenders. We have had before us an individual who told one of our members recently that whiskey and other liquors had been sold him in the neighborhood of Doughoregan, but who flatly denied such a statement. We are satisfied that the person has sworn falsely, but we cannot make a case against him. That there is perjury on the part of witnesses in some of these cases is evident. We would recommend that the County Commissioners urge the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company to place a night watchman at the crossing at Elkridge for the protection of passers. The Grand Jury returned three indictments against William H. Thomas, the Ellicott City watchmaker, who disappeared some time ago with a large number of watches and articles of jewelry which had been left in his hands by residents Club, will engage in a two days' hunt in for repairs.

The damage case of Rosa Reed against Henry Lotz was concluded Saturday with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $650. It involved a suit for $1,000 for taking possession of property occupied by the plaintiff without due legal notice having been given.

Peter Reynolds, colored, who was charged with shooting his wife with intent to kill, was tried on Monday and found guilty. The offense was committed several months ago, and an indictment against the accused was found by the grand jury at the last September term of Reynolds was subsequently apprehended at Pikesville, Baltimore county. Sentence was reserved by the court.

In the case of Matilda and Andrew Keith against Charles C. Fisher, in which the validity of a chattel mortgage was in dispute, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs, thus nullifying the effect of the mortgage. Ex-Senator John G .Rogers represented the plaintiffs, and J-Malcolm Dorsey the defendant. John and Savoy Fisher, colored, were tried on Tuesday on the charge of assaulting, with intent to rape, a colored married woman named Hattie Dorsey, at Cooksville, on Christmas Eve last. Both the accused were acquitted by the jury after a few minutes' deliberation.

The removed ejectment case from Harford county of John G. Jay against John M. Mitchell was taken up for trial Wednesday. The case involves the title to certain property, including a valuable fishing shore. Messrs. Archer & Archer and John S. Young, of the Harford county bar; John L. G. Lee, of Baltimore, and ex-Senator John G. Rogers, of the Ellicott City bar, were the counsel for the plaintiff, and the defendant was represented by John J. Donaldson, S. A. Williams and George L. Van Bibber.

William Fuller, colored, was tried here on the charge of attempting to kill another colored man named John Henry Johnson. The jury returned a verdict of common assault.

The Harford county ejectment case which began Wednesday occupied the attention of the Court on Thursday. It will be resumed again on next Tuesday, to which date court has adjourned. The removed Baltimore county case to this court for trial, known as the Hay will case, has been amicably settled by consent of counsel on both sides.

Easter at Emory M. E. Church, Easter Sunday will be appropriately observed at Emory M. E. Church. In the morning the sermon will be by Rev. Wm. Rogers. The music will be in charge of Herrmann, organist. The choir will be composed of Miss Merab Mercier, Mrs. Geo. D. Maxwell, Miss Blanche VanSant, Miss Anna James and Mrs. II. Isaac, sopranos; Mrs. Belle Feigley and Miss Bertha R. Brown, altos; Horace Isaac and Chas. P. Radeliffe, tenors, and V. G. Mercier and Chas. A. Herrmann, bassos. They will sing "Old Easter Anthem," arranged by J. F. Kinsey; "Victory over Death," by Herbert; "O Joyous Sound, O Glorious Hour," by Adams, and "Christ hath Won the Victory" by Herbert. At night a special program will be given by the Sunday school. They will use J. Lincoln Hall's wonderful message prepared especially for Easter Service entitled "Christ is Risen." The service is particularly attractive for its unison, choruses, solos, duets and recitations.

GLENWOOD, March 24.—It was my pleasure to be a guest of the Glenwood Farmers' Club which met at the substantial and pretty residence of Mr. Samuel E. Musgrove on the 23rd instant, and more than pleased to note the marked advancement of the club in discussing matters that most interest and touch the farm er's promotion and welfare; the regard and courtesy practiced by each gentleman toward his brother members is thoroughly commendable. The discussion at this meeting was, is sapling clover profitable to grow and how best sown to prove of greatest profit; also what is the best time in the year to sow clover seed to get the best results? Another important discussion, what is the best way to rid the land or one's farm of plantain? Both subjects were well discussed and conclusions drawn, which I as a guest am not at iberty to divulge. FACTS FROM FULTON.

FULTON, March 29 .- A happy surprise was given Monday night to Mrs. Henry Timmerman, president of the Ladies' Aic Society of St. Paul's Lutheran Church. The L. A. S., agreeably to a plan previously arranged, met shortly after eight o'clock in the grove opposite the resi dence and under the leadership of Mrs W. F. lager quietly marched to the dwelling. Mrs. Timmerman was prevailed upon by her niece to answer the summons at the door where she quite unexpectedly was confronted by the invading visitors and overwhelmed with their greetings and congratulations, i being her 71st birthday. She had beer kept in happy ignorance of the inten ions of the society and her surprise was naturally very great and complete, but a greater surprise was in store for her when the company repaired to the parlor where Mrs. W. F. lager with an eulogistic ddress in behalf of the society, presented their honorable president with a pair of handsome gold spectacles as a token of their esteem and in recognition of her valuable services in the Master's vineyard, and appreciation of her faithhelping to bring to successfull issue the plans of the society with which, she has in the Philippine Islands," considering peen actively identified ever since its foundation. A neat wreath of remembrance and fidelity was presented by Mrs. Fred Kol pack with well chosen poetical remarks vention to be held at Elkridge some time in German. Mrs. Timmerman responded during the month of April: Mr. E. M. to each presentation and to all the honors of fidelity and constancy to duty so long as God spares her for a sphere of useful ness here. The dining table was laden with its handsome spread of delicious cake, fruits, lemonade, with lovely floral tributes as a center which, together with the happy faces surrounding the board, gotten, Bro. H. Timmerman afforded an opportunity to the gentlemen to sample some choice Havanas. A very sociable time was spent by all present and it was with reluctance that the visiors left for home. THE WEEK IN THE CHURCH. Baltimore American, Sunday: The church today enters upon the most solemn week of the religious year. Disguise it as we may, the most attractive feature of Christianity-that which captivates humanity and makes easy the spread of the Gospel-is the personality of Christ. His blameless life, His simplicity, His wondrous wisdom and His awful burden of sorrows, single Him out from all other human beings in history as the most interesting and the most loyable, as well as one who, in the profoundest degree, excites the sympathies of mankind. It is the human side of the Savior which appeals to the people, for the obvious reason that the divine side is something that no finite being can comprehend. When thus viewed, Christ stands alone in history, and it is this which furnishes the strongest inference of his God-like nature.

No other founder of a religion is thus known to the world. There are legends and traditions in abundance, but they are so fantastic that the judgment rejects them as evidence. It is possible to extract certain grains of truth, and make up a connected and a somewhat plausible story of one or more of these great men; but the maze of doubt in which their lives are shrouded is an effectual barrier to the human love and sympathy which played so important a part in Christianity. The records of some of these religious teachers are far more voluminous than the authentic stories of Christ's life, but the latter are wonderfully tree from fancy or fiction. They are so simple and straightforward as to suggest truth, and they create the impression that their authors' only aim was to tell the truth as they had seen or tives in Baltimore City during the past heard it. It is conceded that there are errors in the Gospels-such minor errors asmen writing the same story from different standpoints would be liable to make, but they are not such as to impair the credibility of the facts in Christ's life. Those tacts are few and simple, and for this reason they are readily absorbed by the humblest of mankind as well as the most cultured, and they make an impression deeper and more lasting than it is in the power of any other narrative visiting her sister, Mrs. Barry, of New to create. The week beginning today commemorates the most interesting of these facts, and those fraught with the most tremendous consequences to the

those who have gone through the mills human race. The triumphal entry o of higher education Jesus into Jerusalem amid the welcoming plaudits of thousands was a distinct departure from His former life, and was in its issue of Sunday, Feb. 12th, and an evident challenge to His enemies to just a few days previously the country do their worst. His time had come, and had been surprised by an article by Mrs He was probably anxious for the end. Lew Wallace in the February Ladies' His feverish anxiety during the week Home Journal, pointing out how the and the rapid condensation of his teachschools actually "murder" the children ings, together with their frequent recur and degenerate the race. But, worse rence, all indicate His conviction of the than all this for the taxpayers, while al end, and His desire to give to those this is going on the State Socialists of about Him all the instruction possible pefore it came. feed, clothe, bathe and amuse poor school It is most singular that not one of the children also. This in many sections is latter seems to have had the slightest idea now being done, and, if not intercepted, of his divine mission, or to what events the next demand will be that the old socialists be also fully provided for by were leading. Not one of Christ's disciples at the Last Supper, in the Garden of Gethsemane, at the foot of the cross, or when the Saviour was laid in the tomb, appears to have regarded the Saviour as other than an earthly friend and leader When partaking of the Last Supper they were saddened by some mysterious dread of approaching evil; in the garden they were stricken with panic and dispersed before the high priest the Saviour was cruelly denied, and at the foot of the cross they mourned as persons withou hope. It was not until the angel notified the women on the resurrection morn that Christ had arisen that the scales dropped from their eyes, and the full force of the Saviour's mission burst upon them. The church will follow the footsteps of Jesus during the week until He is laid in the tomb, and will on Sunday next join in the grand chorus of the resurrection.

PUBLICATIONS.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE FOR APRIL I an Easter number with a special colored cover, designed by Maxfield Parrish. It contains a poem for Good Friday, by Mrs. Dorr, with decorations by Henry McCarter; "Easter in Town," a poem with a picture by W. Glackens, and a story with a great deal of religious feeling in it by Henry van Dyke, entitled "A Lover of Music." This is one of several stories of life in the woods, which every reader of "Little Rivers" knows that Dr van Dyke is well fitted to write by reason of his long and ardent companionship with nature. The illustrations by Walter Appleton Ctark confirm that young artist's position as one of the leading American illustrators. Colonel Roosevelt reaches the climax of his narrative of the Rough Riders in the description given in this number of the battle of San Juan Hill. This was he culmination of the Santiago campaign, and Col. Roosevelt has spared no pains o embody in it every fact of importance n regard to the action of the cayalry in that battle. This was "the great day" of the Rough Riders, and what they did is here put down by their commanding officer with historical accuracy and historical balance and judgment. It is an admirable piece of writing, not only for ermanent historical work.

popular reading, but for those who value REVIEW OF REVIEWS FOR APRIL.--Ir the American Monthly Review of Re views for April the editor reviews the work of the Fifty-fifth Congress, exam ines the present status of the various plans for inter-oceanic ship transit, discusses the latest developments in the Philippine situation, and comments on the other news topics of the day in home and foreign politics, including the cabinet charge in Spain and the altered relations of Germany, England, and the United States. Samuel W. Belford, late assistant adjulant-general on the staff of fut efforts in furthering the objects and General Otis at Manila, contributes an interesting article on "Material Problems the business and manufacturing opport unities presented to the wide-awake American in the islands. Mr. Winthrop L. Marvin answers the assertion that Americans are without experience in the control of Oriental races by citing American experience in Honolulu, a town "as polyglet as Manila." We control the polyglot as Manila." We control the lawailans, he says, "not by force of arms, but by force of character. LADIES' HOME JOURNAL FOR APRIL.

Easter in the Church," picturing some churches most artistically decorated for Easter, appropriately opens the April Ladies' Home Journal. "Easter Morn in a Colored Convent" and Easter Monday's 'Egg-Rolling in the President's Big Yard," though differing widely, are also imely and interesting. A notable special feature recounts the eccentric and dazzing career of "The Magnificent 'Madam' Rush," the most famous social leader of her day, and another portrays "The Life of a Japanese Girl." Three articles of peculiar interest are entitled, "How to be Pretty Though Plain," "About Men," emphasizing the evils of flirting, and 'What it Means to be a Housewife,' showing the demands and requirements of the vocation. Edward Bok editorially writes to the girl who seeks "higher education" and Mrs. J. W. Curhey, Mr. and Mrs. Frank | cannot go to college, and upon the house-
